

Call for Nominations: CAUCE Research Awards

The CAUCE Research Awards program recognizes:

- graduate students whose research in university continuing education and/or adult education in Canada will make a difference and
- researchers who have made a sustained contribution to university continuing education and/or adult education in Canada.

Graduate Student Research Award

The purpose of the award is to recognize a graduate thesis or dissertation that makes a distinct contribution to Canadian-based university continuing education and/or adult education.

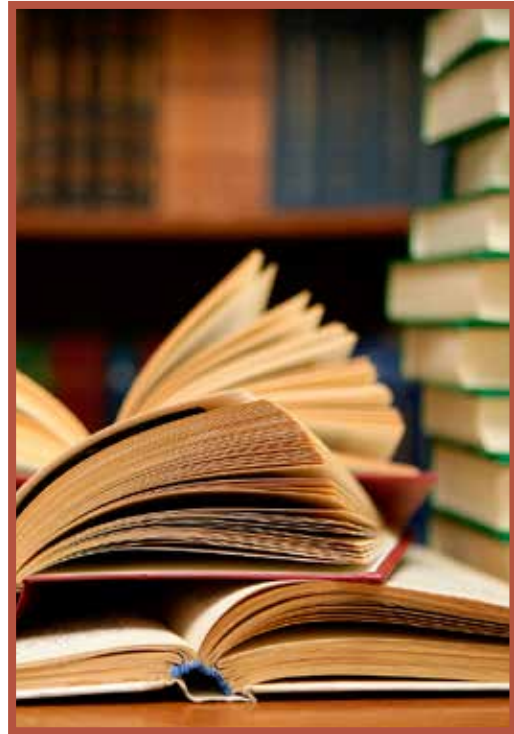

Submissions are invited from individuals attending Canadian universities or Canadians attending universities outside of Canada. In order to be eligible, the thesis or dissertation must have been successfully completed (defended) within two calendar years prior to the award application. Theses previously submitted to CAUCE for this award are not eligible for consideration.

Distinguished Researcher Award

The purpose of the award is to recognize an individual who has made a long-term, sustained contribution to research into university continuing education and/or adult education in Canada.

Nomination Process

In the case of each award, individuals from CAUCE member institutions may nominate their peers. The nomination should describe the contribution made by the nominee to the field and provide a rationale of why the person is a deserving winner of the award.
